Que.2) Where do you see in the next five years from now.
⇒

In the next five years, I can establish myself as a skilled and experienced IT professional, specializing in areas like software development, cybersecurity, cloud computing or AI, depending on my interests. With my background in C#, java and database management, I might advance into roles such as software engineer, solutions architect or even a tech lead.

As the IT industry continues to evolve, staying ahead requires continuous learning and adaption. Gaining certifications, contributing to open source projects, or working on side projects can boost my experience and expertise. If I were in my position in IT field, my goal over 5 years would be to achieve leadership or specialized technical role that aligns with my strengths and interests.

Also my interest in broader IT management. I could transition into roles like IT project Manager or Solutions Architect, focusing on planning and implementing enterprise-level solutions. Also I have entrepreneurial mindset, I might even consider launching my own tech startup or consulting business. I would continue learning, working, networking and hands-on experience will be crucial to reaching my desired positions in the next 5 years.

Career Advancement

In the next five years, I envision myself advancing in my career as a software developer, possibly moving into a leadership role or specializing in a specific area like artificial intelligence or cybersecurity.

In the initial years, I aim to deepen my understanding of programming languages, frameworks, and best practices. I will focus on mastering data structures, algorithms, and system design while actively contributing to real-world projects.

Additionally, I plan to work on open source projects and obtain relevant certifications to validate my skills.

Research and Development

In the next five years, I hope to be working on cutting-edge research projects, collaborating with top researchers and institutions, and contributing to the development of new technologies.
