POPULATION GEOGRAPHY

Student Seminar

Report

Department of Geography conducted a seminar on Population Geography on 27/10/2023 in this seminar, a total 18 students presented seminars on various topics of population geography. Through this seminar, the students gained more in-depth knowledge about population geography. Population geography is a sub-branch of human geography that focuses on the spatial distribution, composition, migration, sources of population data, growth of human populations, etc. The study of population geography is important for several reasons. We selected the best seminar price and distributed three prizes in this seminar.
