Date / Duration	Friday, 24 th November 2023 at 04.30 PM
Aims and Objectives	Physics is one of those subjects that is often avoided until the last minute because it is far too complicated to arouse the interest of students. Physics can be challenging as it demands applied thinking and problem - solving skills that can only be developed through practice.

Brief Discussion	Dr. Gaurav Lohar, Assistant Professor, Department of Physics, Lal Bahadur Shastri (LBS) College, Satara, Maharashtra, India have discussed on “How to Improve Students Strength in Physics Subject” with the faculty. He said in the discussion that Physics or any subject for that matter can be made easy when studied right. Physics is hard because it demands a strong base in both mathematics and science but it is certainly not impossible to understand. Often the lack of confidence in a subject stems from a place of unfamiliarity. Therefore, students should learn, practice and nurture their curiosity to build confidence in physics subject. Dr. Sanjay S. Latthe welcomed Dr. Gaurav Lohar and Dr. S. I. Inamdar has given vote of thanks.
Outcomes	The students strength in Physics subject can be improved by developing the attitude of learning, practicing and nurturing the confidence of students.
